The vicinity of our city was visited last evening by one of the most fearful and desirucive rain storms that ever occurred perhaps in any latitude. The raie, which was accompanied by the most terrific lightning and thunder, commenced descending in perfect torrents about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and continued without intermission for a period of these hours, flooding our streets and avenues with water. The present height of the river and descending floods contributed to swell the Bayou Gay-lood, which extends throughout almost the ettire length of our city in the eastern suburbs, until it reached a height between four and five feet in excess of anything ever known before. At the late hours that the world is impossible to give the particulars of this fearful calamity, but there has doubt as the an loss of the lives, while property to the amount of $100,000 has been destroyed.
